Therefore I raise the hills
and valleys with delight,
That, day or night,
You may catch sight
Of some sweet joy that dwells
Your heart.

C. S. Lewis

The Valley of the Rhine, Canton of Thurgau

Winter in the Pöls-Isère National Park

*He creeth alone, alone and proud
From the shore of an aweside sea.*

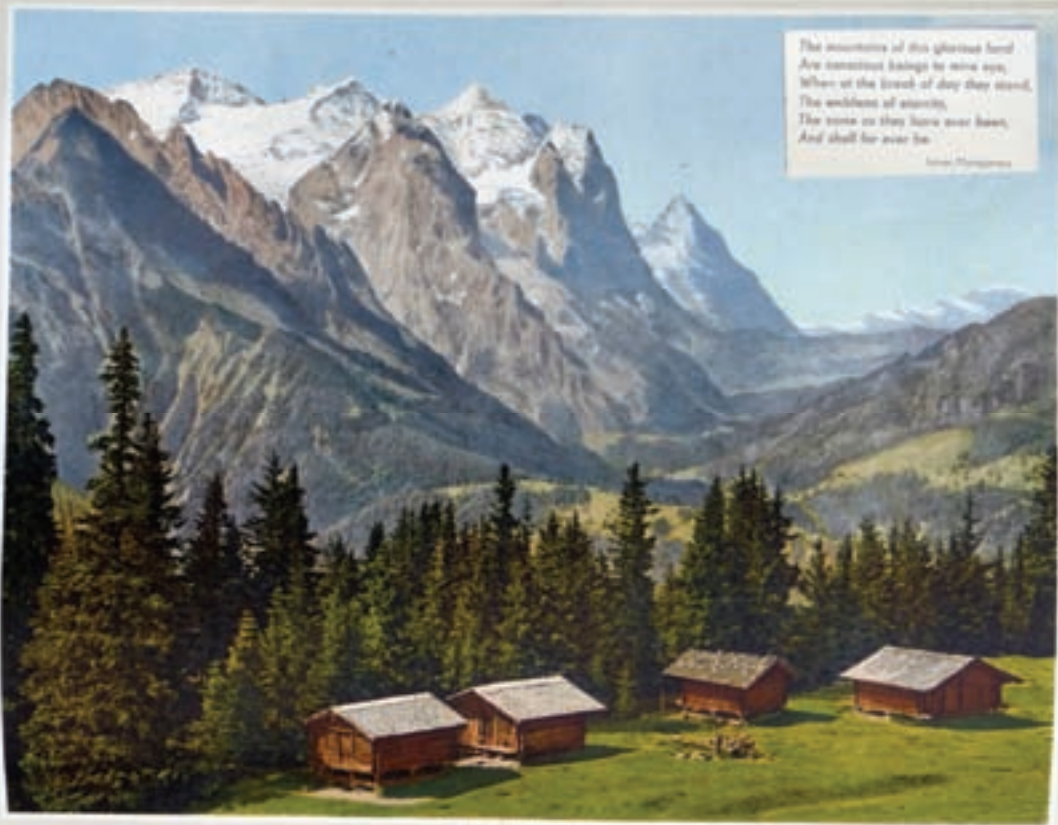

Lucerne with Mount Pilatus

*The glaciers creep
Like snakes that watch their prey, from their far fastness
Sift rolling on; there, many a precipice
Frost and the sun, in scorn of mortal power
Have gild.*

Trueman

Piz Davos with the Watzmann Glacier

The mountains of this glorious land
Are constant things to mine eye,
When at the break of day they stand,
The wildness of their
The same as they have ever been,
And shall be ever be.

John Thompson

The Woodhouse from Hailberg

To one who gazeth from this hill
Life seems asleep, all is so still,
Nought beneath save the travelling clouds
Of clouds so high that float and loom.

Robert Bridges

Alpine Station, looking towards the Misch and Jochberg

*Far bet into her house
 Spring to come home with her world-wandering feet,
 And all things are made young with young desires,
 By dawn and dusk on the jagged hills.*

Francis Thompson

A Swiss Chalet near Thun

*Here by the lake I sit and dream
 In this first breath of spring
 And watch the hills, slowly turn,
 And hear the bells that jangling ring,
 And feel deep peace about me,
 From lake and mountains, flowers and trees.*

Caroline M. M.

Lucerne, The Quay

*Children! The prison is a holy place,
And the end there an altar, for 'twas here
By Barnabas, Mary wore those magic slippers,
For they opened him, trying to God.*

Lucy

Children

*We looked upon a world unknown,
On nothing we could call our own,
Around the glittering wonder here
The blue walls of the firmament,
No cloud above, no earth below,
A universe of sky and snow.*

John Churchill Whittier

The Flamingo with the Christmas

We looked upon a world unknown,

Alpine wildflowers.
