

The Tails of Tudor the Cat.
By Mel Phillips

Hilarious and true stories featuring a vicious and pampered ginger cat, who hated people (especially vets) but who was in love with a stuffed fox called Samantha.

‘Why Aye Boy!’ by Mel Phillips.
Amusing, and sometimes bawdy true tales of Pembroke in the 40’s and 50’s. A must read for people of a certain age!!

‘A Peep inside a Cricketer’s Box’.
True stories from Mel Phillip’s time as a cricket scorer for Pembroke.
One woman in a man’s world!
Read about the sometimes -dreadful cricket teas, the lack of toilet facilities, and the hilarious cricket tours.

Her latest book is called ‘Another Brick in the Wall’ and features true stories from her time as a schoolteacher. The book focuses on teachers (not children) and the sometimes strange and eccentric bunch she taught with in her four very different schools.

Warning!! Contains some language unsuitable for children